

Formation Presentation - Master of Strategic and Security Studies

Field: LAW and POLITICAL SCIENCES

Study: POLITICAL SCIENCES

Specialization: MASTER of STRATEGIC and SECURITY STUDIES

❖ INTRODUCTION TO THE MASTER'S PROGRAM

The aim of presenting the academic Master's program in Strategic and Security Studies is to provide specialized training for students of international relations in a vital and strategic field within international studies, particularly in the area of security studies. The rationale for creating this specialization is driven by the changes taking place in the international security environment and the multiplicity of threats in terms of their type and scope, which goes beyond the traditional concept of military security towards a more comprehensive concept of human security that includes social, economic, and cultural dimensions.

❖ FORMATION OBJECTIVES:

Through this program, our goal is to create a nucleus that will be the first building block towards establishing specialized institutes and research centers for security and strategic studies in Algeria. We aim to train researchers who have the ability to contribute to the field of political science and its related scientific branches such as political analysis, comparative studies, and forecasting. In addition, from a practical standpoint, students will acquire knowledge that has a realistic and practical impact, especially since the course curriculum will focus on studying developments in the field of security theory and practice, with a connection to strategic aspects. The training will focus on the strategic and security aspects of Algeria as a case study.
